TONY CRAGG: INFINITE FORMS AND BOUNDLESS BEAUTY AT THE BATHS OF DIOCLETIAN

Until May 4, 2025, the Museo Nazionale Romano will host a spectacular exhibition at the Baths of Diocletian, featuring the works of Tony Cragg, one of the most renowned contemporary sculptors. The exhibit highlights the artist's unique approach to sculptural design, exploring nature's creative processes and evolution.

The exhibition extends beyond the museum, with sculptures displayed in iconic Roman piazzas, creating a dialogue between Cragg's innovative art and the city's historic architecture. Cragg cites Charles Darwin as one of his largest inspirations for the exhibit, encapsulating Cragg's passion for exploring the richness of life's structures, from the microscopic to the cosmic.

Featuring 18 medium-and large-scale sculptures crafted from materials such as bronze, wood, travertine, fiberglass, and steel, the works evoke natural forms, geological patterns, and biomorphic shapes, blending abstraction and figuration. Visitors are invited to experience a journey that engages the senses and imagination, bridging visible and invisible realms, nature and artifice, tradition, and modernity.

Cragg's works have been exhibited in major museums worldwide and are part of prestigious collections. He has participated in multiple Venice Biennales, Documenta in Kassel, and biennials in São Paulo and Sydney. In 1988, he was awarded the Turner Prize, and in 2007, he received the Praemium Imperiale from the Japanese Imperial Court.

In recent years, Cragg's exhibitions have included the Museo Novecento in Florence (2022), where part of his studio was recreated, the Reggia di Venaria (2023), and the Negozio Olivetti in Venice, which runs until November 2024. His upcoming showcase at the Baths of Diocletian marks another milestone, presenting sculptures that resonate within the monumental spaces of one of Rome's most historic landmarks. Cragg's exhibition invites visitors to discover the boundless possibilities of sculpture as a medium for connecting the past, present, and future through his own extraordinary vision.
